Menstrual leave rule put on hold

Bengaluru, Dec. 9 (Agencies)- The High Court of Karnataka has stayed the State Government's Nov. 20 notification mandating one additional paid leave per month for women employees aged 18 to 52 during their menstrual cycle.

Justice M. Jyoti passed the interim order this morning while hearing two separate petitions filed by the Bangalore Hotels' Association and Avirata AFL Connectivity Systems Ltd., Bengaluru.

The petitioners argued that no existing law empowers the Government to mandate menstrual leave and contended that the notification lacked support from any Legislative framework.

The Judge questioned whether the Government had consulted employers before issuing the order. When the petitioners' Counsel confirmed that no such consultation had taken place, the Court granted the interim stay.

The plea notes that the Hotels' Association has around 1,540 active establishments as members, formed to promote and protect the interests of its stakeholders through representation, consultation, advocacy and fostering harmonious labour relations.

The now-stayed notification had directed employers to provide 12 paid menstrual leaves annually to women aged 18-52 covered under the Factories Act, 1948; Karnataka Shops and Commercial Establishments Act, 1961; Plantation Workers Act, 1951; Beedi and Cigar Workers (Conditions of Employment) Act, 1966; and Motor Transport Workers Act, 1961. It also stated that no medical certificate would be required to avail the leave.

Doctor loses Rs. 82 lakh in fake TRAI, Police scam

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (KS)- Cyber criminals posing as a Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (TRAI) Officer and Bandra Police have duped a resident of Vijayanagar, Mysuru, of Rs. 82.10 lakh, threatening him with money laundering charges.

The victim, Mahesh (name changed), received a call from Mob: 91051-46956. The caller, identifying himself as M.V. Amith Shyam, Public Relations Officer of TRAI Notification Division, claimed that Mahesh's mobile no. 93956-xxx78 had been used for illegal activities and instructed him to contact Bandra Police for clarification.

Following the instructions, Mahesh made a video call to the number provided. The person on the call, dressed in a Police uniform with a Mumbai Crime Branch logo in the background, claimed obscene videos and illegal advertisements had been sent from Mahesh's number. He further alleged that threatening calls were being made to Mumbai residents using Mahesh's phone.

The fake officer also told Mahesh that transactions worth Rs. 2 crore had been made from his bank account and that arrest warrants had been issued against him and his wife in money laundering cases.

He instructed Mahesh to transfer funds, claiming a No Objection Certificate (NOC) would be issued only after inspecting his bank accounts and properties. Trusting the caller, Mahesh transferred Rs. 11.10 lakh from his Union Bank account, Rs. 33 lakh from Axis Bank and Rs. 38 lakh from IndusInd Bank, totalling Rs. 82.10 lakh across bank accounts, including State Bank of India, Bank of Baroda and ICICI Bank.

When communication from the impostor ceased for several days, Mahesh realised he had been cheated and lodged a complaint with the city's Cybercrime, Economic Offences and Narcotics (CEN) Police Station.

In a similar incident, a 71-year-old man was cheated of Rs. 5 lakh on Dec. 5 after being threatened with a 'Digital Arrest' in a money laundering case. The criminal demanded the money as a fee to avoid arrest. A case has also been registered in this matter at the CEN Police Station.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

WHEN CLARITY ENDS CONFUSION: Decision-making, for most of us, becomes heavier than it needs to be. The moment a choice appears, the mind begins its familiar dance. Thoughts circle around the options, trying to predict outcomes, trying to secure certainty and the whole thing turns strangely tiring. Something as simple as choosing becomes a small inner battle.

If one looks a little closer, the trouble is not with the choice at all. The trouble lies in the one who is trying to choose. Life appears full of conflicting possibilities because the mind itself is full of conflicting tendencies. We do not really know what we stand for, or from where our wants arise. The same mind that pulls you towards something also pulls you away from it. This inner divide shows up outside as a crowd of options.

When that division settles, the strain of choosing settles as well. A clear mind does not sit weighing pros and cons. It simply sees.

Right action then is not something you construct through effort. It shows itself, the way a path becomes visible when morning light softly dissolves the fog. Facts have a simplicity of their own. It is our fears and attachments that blur them and make the obvious look complicated.

So whenever confusion begins to tighten its grip, the first step is not to think more. It is to pause and turn inward. Ask yourself with some honesty: Am I looking at the situation as it is, or am I looking through the push and pull of my own desires? The moment this question is asked sincerely, something settles. The mist thins. You discover that the situation was never the problem; the lens was.

Clarity does not give you ten choices. It quietly removes nine of them. What is untrue drops away and what remains is simply what must be done. The decision, in a sense, has already happened. You only needed to get out of your own way to notice it.

Clarity is not an addition to the mind. It is a return. Like reminding someone that they always had eyes, though they lived as if they did not know how to use them. And once you begin to truly see, the whole drama of choosing loses its tension. The mind stops struggling. The path stands revealed. — Acharya Prashant in Deccan Herald

Baby fur seal wanders into bar

Richmond: A bar in New Zealand shared security camera footage of an unusual patron — a baby fur seal that wandered into the business.

Sprig + Fern The Meadows, a craft beer bar in Richmond, posted video to Facebook showing the baby seal wandering among the tables and customers inside the bar.

"Everyone was pretty shocked. A lot of people thought it was a dog at first, because we are a dog-friendly establishment" co-owner Bella Evans said.

She said the seal was inside the bar for about 25 minutes. The animal was eventually lured into a dog crate using salmon from the bar's pizza special and was picked up by a Department of Conservation ranger and released on Rabbit Island, a small island in the Tasman Bay area that is considered safe for seals.

'Angry octopus' lashes out at man

Sydney: A swim on holiday at a Western Australia beach has resulted in a painful octopus "whipping" - and a video of the incident that has gone viral on social media.

Geologist and author Lance Karlson was about to take a dip near the resort he and his family were staying at in Geographe Bay, on Australia's southwest coast, when he spotted what he thought was the tail of a stingray emerging from the water and striking a seagull.

Upon walking closer with his two-year-old daughter, he discovered it was an octopus, and took a video, which shows the animal in shallow water take a sudden strike in Karlson's direction with its tentacles.

"The octopus lashed out at us, which was a real shock," Karlson said. He posted the video with the comment: "The angriest octopus in Geographe Bay!" which was widely shared.

VOICE OF THE READER

Regulate traffic at busy Manipal Hospital Junction

Sir,

I wish to draw the immediate attention of the authorities concerned to the critical traffic mismanagement at Manipal Hospital Junction, especially during morning hours. Right at the Manipal Hospital Junction, a bus stop has been placed for buses arriving from the Mysuru-Bengaluru Highway into Mysuru city.

This location is highly unscientific and poorly planned, as it lies directly on a narrow stretch of the road where vehicles converge from multiple directions. Every morning, at peak hours, the situation becomes chaotic.

The bus stop alone is not the only reason for the disruption. Tens of autorickshaws are permanently parked near the same spot, further narrowing the carriageway and creating a dangerous bottleneck.

As a result, hundreds of students, teachers, office-goers and daily professional commuters are forced to spend long minutes stuck in traffic every day.

Ironically, a Traffic Police Officer from Narasimharaja Traffic Police Station is stationed right there, yet no regulation or enforcement is visible.

Buses stop wherever they please, autos occupy the roadside without restriction and commuters bear the consequences. Road discipline is completely absent despite the presence of an officer.

This junction has become a traffic hazard and requires immediate corrective action. The following steps are strongly recommended:

1. Relocation of the bus stop to a safer, wider stretch of road. 2. Restriction on autorickshaw parking at the junction; designated parking must be created elsewhere. 3. Strict enforcement by Traffic Police, especially during peak hours. 4. Clear road markings and signboards to guide public transport vehicles.

If timely action is not taken, congestion will continue to worsen and the risk of accidents will rise.

I request the authorities to intervene at the earliest and take necessary measures to ensure smooth, safe and disciplined traffic movement at Manipal Hospital Junction for the benefit of thousands of daily commuters.

Vishwamanava train delay causes daily inconvenience

Sir,

Commuters travelling on the Vishwamanava Express have raised concerns over the train's prolonged halt and delayed arrival at Mysuru.

According to regular passengers, the train reaches Pandavapura Station at 7.45 pm but arrives at Mysuru only at 8.45 pm, resulting in a delay of more than 35 minutes every day.

This extended travel time has become a source of frustration for daily travellers, many of whom rely on the train for timely commutes. Passengers are urging railway authorities to review the schedule and explore alternatives to minimise delays and improve efficiency.

The Vishwamanava Express serves as a crucial link for hundreds of commuters between Bengaluru and Mysuru.

However, the current delay not only wastes time but also affects work-life balance for many passengers.

Authorities are requested to take immediate action to address this issue and ensure smoother operations.

The Vishwamanava Express is a lifeline for office-goers and students, yet its inefficiency raises serious questions. Why does a train covering the Bengaluru-Mysuru route, touted as a major corridor, suffer such operational delays? Is it due to congestion, poor planning or lack of accountability?

Railway authorities must act. Introducing better scheduling, reducing unnecessary halts or even adding an express alternative could save thousands of commuters from this daily ordeal. In an era where speed and efficiency define progress, wasting 35 minutes every day is unacceptable.

Among them, 22,960 women were tested for breast cancer and six were confirmed and 12,025 were tested for Cervical Cancer and 15 were confirmed cases.

'Non-communicable diseases prove deadly'

Dr. D.G. Nagaraj, District Nodal Officer, Gruha Arogya Scheme, said that unlike earlier days, when communicable diseases proved worrisome, the non-communicable diseases have now turned into the fresh bane, a deadly case indeed.

Gruha Arogya Scheme, was implemented in October this year. Prior to its implementation, Medical Officers and ASHA workers, were given training on the methods of diagnosing. Besides, the required medical equipment and medicines have been provided.

The prevalence of diabetes and hypertension (high BP) is high. If not treated properly, it may cause kidney failure. On an average, 70 percent of deaths in the country, occur due to non-communicable diseases, said Dr. Nagaraj.

Diabetes complicate health condition, prompting the sufferers to undergo dialysis for kidney failure. In this backdrop, Gruha Arogya Scheme proves handy.

The tests will be conducted for 14 non-communicable diseases. The suspected cases, will be subjected to tests at Primary Health Centres. If necessary, they will be recommended for treatment, Dr. Nagaraj added.

Unlicensed driving schools thrive, safety takes a hit

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (BLU&BCT)- Unauthorised driving schools have proliferated across Mysuru like unchecked weeds, training thousands of new motorists every year with virtually no oversight.

Despite these illegal training vehicles operating brazenly on city roads, the Mysuru Regional Transport Office (RTO) continues to maintain a studied silence, allowing the unsafe practice to flourish.

Mysuru had 8.5 lakh registered vehicles in 2016-17. Today, that number has crossed nearly 20 lakh. With hundreds of new vehicles purchased daily — from cars to two-wheelers — the demand for driving lessons has shot up. Nearly 80 percent of new vehicle buyers undergo training at a driving school before taking the wheel.

'Survey will be conducted'

All authorised driving schools are strictly monitored. A survey will immediately be carried out to identify unauthorised driving schools and strict action will be taken. In Mysuru, 128 driving schools have been issued licences. Our officers visit these schools regularly for inspection. We will take action against any driving school operating without authorisation. There is absolutely no question of compromise in this matter.

— C.N. Ramachandra, RTO, Mysuru West

Driving schools typically offer a 15-day training package, including assistance in obtaining a driving licence. As per law, no driving school can operate without a licence from the Regional Transport Authority.

But obtaining this licence involves strict compliance with infrastructure norms and considerable expense. To avoid these costs, a growing number of driving schools have chosen to bypass the law entirely. The result: unlicensed, unsafe driving schools operating openly in every corner of Mysuru.

The vehicles used by these illegal schools are often old, poorly maintained and mechanically unsound. In a recent tragic incident, a trainee lost his life during a session conducted by one such school. Shockingly, the car involved had no valid insurance.

Authorised driving schools are required to provide proper instruction in traffic rules, install display boards with signage, maintain demo vehicles at their offices and employ qualified instructors with valid licences.

Unauthorised schools follow none of these rules — no structured training, no safety checks and absolutely no accountability. Despite the rampant violations, the RTO has reportedly not taken action so far, enabling these operators to continue unchecked.

e-Khata stalled; over 2,000 Bandipalya APMC traders hit

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (DM)- With authorities refusing to issue e-Khatas, over 2,000 traders operating at the Bandipalya APMC are facing severe hardship.

After the State Government made e-Khata mandatory for all properties, the Agricultural Produce Market Committee (APMC) — itself a recognised local authority — has also been caught in the bureaucratic gridlock.

Traders argue that the crisis will persist unless APMC properties are exempted from e-Khata requirements, just as in the case of KIADB and Housing Board properties.

The APMC had earlier been empowered by the Government to sanction building plans and had developed essential amenities for farmers and traders. But the Government's sudden halt on APMC's plan-sanctioning powers has brought ongoing construction and transactions to a standstill.

Collapse of marketing system

Compounding the issue, the APMC premises fall under the jurisdiction of the Urban Planning Development Authority, which has now made it mandatory for the APMC to obtain approvals from the Authority for any construction plans. This shift has created an administrative bottleneck.

Adding to the confusion, the APMC area is split between the Chamundi Hill Gram Panchayat and Kadakola Town Panchayat. With new norms in place, the e-Khata process in both these Local Bodies has completely stalled, traders say.

The fallout has been significant. The non-issuance of e-Khatas has disrupted not just traders but the entire chain of agricultural trade. Banks have made e-Khata mandatory for loans, leaving traders unable to build structures on their allotted sites. Registration of sale deeds for newly allotted APMC sites has also been halted.

Traders warn that if the issue drags on, the market system may collapse, pushing farmers into a deep financial crisis as they may fail to secure competitive prices for their produce.

Many traders are now threatening to shut down businesses unless the Government intervenes immediately.

MLC C.N. Manjegowda, expressing concern, said that the now-suspended e-Khata system had helped traders secure ownership and bank support.

Pointing out that APMC is itself a Local Body, the MLC urged the Government to restore its plan-sanction powers and treat it as a special case to resolve the crisis without delay.

Tiger spotted in BEML campus again?

Rumours causing headache to Forest Department

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (MTY&KS)- The tiger which was spotted inside BEML campus and later disappeared without a trace has now created a sense of fear among the public.

The tiger was spotted inside BEML campus about a week back and the Forest Department officials and staff, who inspected the campus, installed 10 camera traps to observe the movement of the tiger and had also placed a cage to trap the big wild cat besides conducting combing operations.

Meanwhile, a video of a tiger jumping on the compound wall and sneaking out through barbed fencing had gone viral on social media and rumours of the tiger being spotted inside BEML campus again is causing a headache to the Forest Department and people residing in BEML surroundings are now living in a sense of fear.

As there is no information about the tiger and where it went, public seems to believe rumours and living in a sense of fear.

The viral video of a tiger sitting on a small bridge, shot about six months ago, is being projected as the tiger being spotted in BEML again. But the fact is, the video was shot in Kakanakote Safari limits in Nagarahole.

Legal action to be initiated for spreading false information

Combing operations were conducted in BEML campus and no tiger has been spotted till date. Even camera traps have not captured any photos or videos about the tiger's movement. Two cages have been placed and the tiger has not even gone near them. Residents in BEML surroundings have been instructed to be careful. Information about rumours being spread about the tiger being spotted in BEML again has come to our knowledge. The video about the tiger which has gone viral was shot elsewhere but is being projected as BEML campus. This is causing fear among the people. Legal action will be initiated against those spreading rumours.

CFTRI begins mission to feed India's first astronauts

To deliver Indian-style astronaut food for 2027-28 human spaceflight programme

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (BLU&BCT)- The Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI), Mysuru, has embarked on an ambitious mission to craft nutritious, high-quality food for astronauts set to fly in India's first human spaceflight programme in 2027-28.

The project is backed by a special grant from the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR).

Human space travel demands intense physical and mental endurance, and sustaining the health of astronauts in a zero-gravity environment remains a formidable challenge. Experts stress that only scientifically engineered, nutrient-rich food can ensure the strength, stability and alertness essential for space-based research.

As India accelerates its preparations, the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) is gearing up to place the country among the elite global spacefaring nations. Once successful, India will become the fourth nation — after the US, China and Russia — to send humans into space with indigenous capability.

To meet this milestone, the CSIR has entrusted CFTRI with the task of designing space-grade food that aligns with Indian dietary habits.

Scientists note that food developed for American, Chinese or Russian astronauts cannot be directly used, as the Indian diet differs significantly. Consuming unfamiliar meals in space could trigger physiological discomfort and impair mission performance.

CFTRI's specialised research aims to fill this critical gap by developing Indian-style, nutrient-dense, shelf-stable food suited for space conditions.

The institute is working to complete the project ahead of the 2027-28 launch window, ensuring that Indian astronauts are equipped with culturally familiar, scientifically vetted meals throughout their mission.

CFTRI set for talks with ISRO

"Consultations will be held with senior ISRO scientists on preparing high-nutrition food for astronauts. Since ISRO's own scientists will be travelling to space, our teams will engage closely with their senior experts. We will hold detailed discussions on several parameters — the type of Indian-style food required, the permissible weight of each item and the exact nutritional profile needed for space missions.

If the food we develop aligns with ISRO's expectations, a formal agreement will be signed between CFTRI and ISRO. Within a few days, we will share comprehensive details with the media on the astronaut-specific nutrition being developed."

— Dr. Giridhar Parvatam, Director, CFTRI, Mysuru

Mission nutrition: Four teams begin work

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (BLU&BCT)- In preparation for India's forthcoming human spaceflight mission, the Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI), Mysuru, has formed four specialised teams of senior scientists to develop high-nutrition, space-grade food for astronauts.

Each team, consisting of four experts, is working exclusively on creating meals capable of withstanding the extreme conditions of space.

Space poses severe challenges

The absence of natural oxygen, the instability of liquids and zero gravity, all make crafting safe, compact and nutrient-dense food a demanding scientific endeavour. Astronauts need meals that occupy minimal space yet deliver maximum nutrition to ensure physical strength, mental alertness and overall stability throughout the mission.

Even small dietary inconsistencies can trigger health complications in space, potentially jeopardising the entire crew. With this in mind, CFTRI aims to develop food that supports astronauts through the harsh, unforgiving environment of space stations. The project is backed by a special grant from the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR), guaranteeing smooth progress without financial obstacles.

For decades, the United States has positioned itself as a global authority in space nutrition and technology, creating the impression that any country venturing into human spaceflight must depend on the US for astronaut food systems.

Breaking this narrative, ISRO has made it clear that India will develop all essential equipment and astronaut-specific food indigenously, without relying on any foreign nation.

BJP stages massive protest at Belagavi over farmer issues

Belagavi, Dec. 9- Accusing the ruling Congress Government of doing nothing to address farmer issues in the State, the Opposition BJP held a massive demonstration along with farmer groups at Malini City Grounds on B.S. Yediyurappa Marg in Belagavi, on the second day of the Winter Session of the State Legislature at Suvarna Vidhana Soudha in Belagavi this morning.

The BJP legislators, led by Opposition Leader R. Ashok and State BJP President B.Y. 'The sugarcane growers and maize farmers are facing a crisis in the State due to low prices. The Government should procure crops as per the MSP (Minimum Support Price) stipulated by the Centre for each crop and also establish adequate procurement centres for the benefit of farmers," they urged.

Urging the Government to immediately come to the rescue of farmers, who are hard hit by low prices and facing difficulty in finding markets, the BJP leaders warned of intensifying their agitation if the Government fails to address farmer issues.

DC orders swift joint survey of deemed forests in Mysuru

Mysuru, Dec. 9 (MTY&BCT)- Mysuru Deputy Commissioner (DC) G. Lakshmikanth Reddy has directed officials to expedite the joint survey of deemed forests across the district and submit the report at the earliest.

Chairing the Deemed Forest Committee meeting on Monday at the DC Office auditorium in Siddharthanagar, he reviewed taluk-wise data presented by Forest officials and instructed them to carry out joint surveys and inspections with the Revenue Department without delay.

The reports must be submitted promptly to the taluk-level and district-level committees, he said.

Stressing the need to safeguard forested areas, the DC noted that challenges such as climate change will intensify in the coming years, making the protection of forests and deemed forests indispensable. He urged officials to conduct surveys thoroughly and finalise the report quickly.

3,812 hectares identified

In Mysuru Regional Forest Division, covering Mysuru City, Mysuru Taluk, T. Narasipur, Nanjangud, H.D. Kote and Saragur, a total of 3,812 hectares of deemed forest has been identified.

A joint survey is currently underway across various forest ranges, carried out by teams from the Forest, Revenue and other departments. Once the survey is completed, the taluk-level joint inspection committees will scrutinise the findings and submit their reports.

These reports will then be forwarded to the district-level committee, headed by the DC, which will send the final deemed forest report to the State Committee.

After State-level review, the report will be submitted to Supreme Court (SC). The Apex Court's directions will determine what activities may be permitted within the identified deemed forest areas.

What qualifies as a deemed forest?

Any government land above 2 hectares with over 50 naturally grown trees (each with a girth of 30 cm at chest height) is classified as deemed forest. Private land above 5 hectares with naturally grown trees is classified as a private deemed forest. However, private plantations are not included.

Once the SC designates an area as deemed forest, no construction — buildings or other structures — will be allowed. Tree planting and forest regeneration activities will be encouraged to boost ecological balance.

The meeting was attended by Mysuru Regional Division DCF K. Paramesh, Hunsur Division DCF Mohammed Fayazuddin, Antharasante ACF Madhu and RFOs from multiple forest ranges.

Mysuru, Dec. 9-The National Institute of Engineering (NIE) and Visvesvaraya Technological University (VTU) jointly conducted "VTU Consortium e-Resources Training Programme" here recently.

Educationist and former Principal of NIE, Prof. G. L. Shekar, who was the chief guest, said that teachers have to now learn how to navigate AI transformation in e-Learning. The traditional teaching-learning method of "chalk and talk" were generally replaced by technology-driven teaching using smart boards over a period of time. Now AI has become a transformative force, disrupting e-resources. It is disrupting traditional content generation, assessment and access to information, he said.

Prof. Shekar urged the educators to learn how to harness this 'disruption' to enrich the human experience of learning. It is unfortunate that through technology-driven education, there is loss of human connections. He gave a call to teachers to focus on elements of teaching that algorithms cannot replicate. Though AI is an accelerator for e-Learning and e-Resources, human-centered approach is important and should not be compromised, he added.

Dr. Somaraya B. Tallolli, Librarian and Coordinator, VTU Consortium, said VTU e-Resources is designed for students of VTU-affiliated colleges to provide them familiarity with VTU's vast collection of digital learning material, e-journals, e-books and research database through consortium. VTU provides centralised access to high-quality electronic academic resources.

N. Satyakumar, Industrialist and Hon. Treasurer of NIE Managing Committee, said that with the availability of high-end tools for teaching, the academic integrity and critical thinking should not be comprised.

Dr. K. C. Manjunath, NIE Principal was present. Y.S. Harish, NIE Librarian, welcomed. Dr. P. Parameswara, Assistant Professor, Department of Physics, proposed the vote of thanks.

WORD OF THE DAY

Bravado

Pronunciation: bruh-VAH-doh (noun)

Meaning: Bravado refers to confident or brave talk or behaviour that is intended to impress other people.
Origin: Displays of bravado may be show-offish, daring, reckless and inconsistent with good sense — take, for example, the spectacular feats of stuntpeople — but when successful, they are still likely to be met with shouts of "bravo!" Celebrities, political leaders, corporate giants, and schoolyard bullies, however, may show a different flavour of bravado: one that suggests an overbearing boldness that comes from arrogance or from being in a position of power. The word bravado originally comes from the Italian adjective bravo, meaning "wild" or "courageous," which English can also thank for the more common brave.
Example: "One problem that exists in the whitewater community overall is that people don't always understand the basic elements associated with water and their ignorance and bravado often lead to an incident where someone gets injured or killed." —Tracy Hines, The Durango (Colorado) Herald, 19 Oct. 2025.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Off the record

Meaning: The phrase 'Off the record' is used when you'd like the listener to keep your comments confidential.
Origin: 'Off the record' is a term that came into use during the 1930s, with reference to persons who did not wish to be quoted by journalists. Before this, the phrase probably alluded to the act of striking irrelevant information from court records.
Example: "This is off the record, but I think Jim cheated on entrance exam."
